

Household penetration of digital TV

Nationally, 82 per cent of Australian households have now converted their main television set to digital, either through an integrated digital tuner or a digital set-top-box or digital device.

Penetration of digital television

